PROFESSIONAL PRACTICE

María José's practice focuses on international commercial and investment arbitration, as well as public international law. She has participated as counsel and tribunal secretary in several highly complex international arbitrations under a variety of arbitral rules and institutions. Her experience includes industries such as mining, telecommunications, and financial services.

Before joining the firm, she worked as a legal extern at the International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID) and at Colombia's National Agency for the Legal Defense of the State (ANDJE). During her work in both institutions, she acquired significant knowledge of investor-State dispute settlement proceedings.

She also has experience in human rights law, working for the rights of inmates, acting as a member of the Latin American and Caribbean legal clinic of the Media Freedom Legal Panel, and partaking in the submission of petitions, amicus curiae briefs, and lawsuits before the Inter-American Court of Human Rights.

María José has also held academic positions as researcher in projects from over 30 countries, including contributions to the Columbia Center on Sustainable Investment (CCSI) and the International Bar Association's Human Rights Institute (IBAHRI), besides publishing articles in peer-reviewed journals on investment arbitration practices in Latin America. She currently works as an adjunct professor, at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels, of Public International Law at Universidad de los Andes and of Investment Arbitration at Universidad del Rosario, in addition to coach of the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition.
